Professional Practice Seminar Blog

Week Eight – No Seminar

Attendance: 100%

Attendees: Matthew Bingham, Elizabeth Cowin, Heema Mistry, Morley Spinks, Sarah Young

Date: Monday 22nd October

Group Discussions

This week we had decided to come together as a team because the project is almost coming to an end. We still have a lot of things to work on however it was important for us to discuss in person how we are managing with the workload in order for the submission to go as smoothly as possibly. We started off with Sarah Young going through the business plan, she has been primarily working on it up until this point and as a group we now have to step up and help her to complete our sections, this should be a smooth process as we assigned different elements of the business plan to the specific people that had researched that area, we have agreed to check this back over in a few days. We also agreed that Matthew Bingham would have minimal work to complete for the business plan as he has a lot of work to be completing for the website and the finance sheet. He walked us through where he was at with the website and we all contributed to ideas of how different sections could be laid out to make it more professional, we also agreed to meet on Friday in order for us to run through the website and to make sure that all the work we have been doing has been uploaded.

Without any tutors there we found it hard to rely on ourselves to complete the right things and if any questions came up we wouldn't be able to have them answered. This however, allowed us to take a more independent approach to working that we hadn't done before and had throughout discussions if anything came up.

Overall, we seem to be working to our deadlines that we have set for ourselves for the different aspects of the project, we have all agreed that we are feeling the pressure a little bit and have found it hard to juggle this along with our other external projects, but we are making sure that our business take priority and our passion for it is continuing to be put into it.